I'm a newbie to painting and mixed-media art (I've only been taking classes for a few months now), and had been worried that this book would be above my skill level when I pre-ordered it. It just arrived today, however, and its clear instructions and explanations make me confident that I will be able to create the art within its pages. Carrie is such a talented artist, and just reading through this made me eager to run upstairs and pull out my paints! This is a great book for both new and more experienced artists, and both will learn valuable skills from it. The book opens with an overview of the various materials that you'll need to do the projects and a general explanation of the color wheel. Carrie provides a nice overview of the basic tools you will want to have on hand, as well as explanations as to why you'll need each object. From there, the book opens with its first main chapter. There are seven main chapters overall, and each one starts off with a main theme that provides an overview of what that chapter's focus will be. After the overview, there are two mini-essays called "Blossoming," where two guest artists (what Carrie calls the "Flower Tribe") provide some sample paintings and some tips for burgeoning artists. (As a sidenote, I was excited to see one of my favorite artists Kelly Rae Roberts as one of the featured guests [as well as Lynx, who is Kelly Rae's comrade in her online class, which what got me started with painting].) These smaller tips pages don't have projects, but they do contain really interesting information, and it was really fun to see how each artist approaches her work.
